EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

During Fiscal Year (FY) 1994-95, 3,592 (Table 4B) Agency Adoptions were completed in California. This is a 4% decline from those completed in FY 1993-94. The number of children placed for adoption decreased also, by approximately 2% from 3654 to 3563 (Table 1). The number of children accepted for adoptive study increased by approximately 18% from 5,691 to 6,728 (Table 1). The number of children legally freed for adoption increased from 3,584 to 3,704 (Table 4).

There was a decrease of 474, or 18%, from FY 1993-94 in the number of petitions (applications) received for Independent Adoptions. There was also a corresponding decrease in the number of approved court reports filed (children placed in independent adoptive homes). There were 1,850 approved court reports filed for FY 1994-95 as compared to 2,443 approved in FY 1993-94. This represents a decrease of 593 (or 24%) court reports filed from the past FY.

Description of Program

Five adoption programs are available in California:

- Agency (Relinquishment) Adoption - Adoption of children who have been relinquished by their natural parent or parents to a licensed adoption agency for adoptive placement.
- Independent Adoption - Adoption in which the natural parents place a child directly with persons of their choice.
- Step-Parent Adoption - Adoption of the children of one's spouse.
- Intercountry Adoption - Adoption of certain foreign-born children by married couples or single persons over the age of 25 through the Intercountry Adoption Program.
- Adult Adoption - Adoption of one adult by another adult.

In terms of numbers, the two principal types of adoption programs supervised by the Adoptions Branch of the Department of Social Services are the Agency (Relinquishment) Adoption Program and the Independent Adoption Program.

An Agency (Relinquishment) Adoption is one in which children are placed through a licensed adoption agency to which the child to be adopted has been relinquished by its natural parents or in which, due to abuse or neglect, parental rights have been terminated by court action. The term "relinquishment" refers to either a legal document signed by a parent and the adoption agency which has agreed to accept the child for adoptive placement, or to the court action terminating parental rights. The relinquishment terminates parental responsibility for the care and custody of the child and transfers this responsibility to the adoption agency. Persons who wish to adopt a child may contact an adoption agency and make an application to adopt. When an application is accepted, the agency makes a study of the family, including an evaluation of the kind of child the family can accept. The relinquished child is then placed with a family suitable to meet the needs of the child. Adoptive placement through relinquishment of a child to a licensed adoption agency provides certain advantages for both the natural and adopting parents, such as: studies by adoption workers to determine the needs of the child, the potentialities of the adopting parents before a child is placed, and the continuing availability of agency services throughout the adoption process.

Cooperative Placements are placements of children in adoptive homes in which one agency has the child in need of a home and another agency has the home in which the child is placed. The placement involves the cooperation of the two agencies. This is in contrast to other placements in which the child and the adoptive home originate within the same agency.

An Independent Adoption is one in which the child's birth parent(s) select the adoptive family and place the child, usually by signing a formal Independent Adoption Placement Agreement, with the family without the assistance of an adoption agency. Parents who have not signed a placement agreement must formally consent to the adoption in writing before the adoption can be granted. After the child is placed, the adopting parents file a petition to adopt with the court. The department or delegated county adoption agency then conducts a study of the prospective adoptive parents to determine their suitability as adoptive parents and of the child to determine if he or she is a proper subject for adoption. The department or county adoption agency reports the findings of the study to the court and recommends that the petition be granted or denied.

The Intercountry Adoption Program enables a California resident(s) to adopt foreign-born children through California adoption agencies licensed to provide intercountry adoption services. The adoption is either completed in California or completed abroad in the child's native country under the laws of the foreign country. Federal law makes special immigration visas available for such children.

The parent(s) who adopts a foreign-born child in California, and the parent(s) who plans to adopt a foreign-born child abroad, is required to have a home study conducted by a California private adoption agency licensed by the Department of Social Services to specifically provide intercountry adoption services.

The foreign-born child may be referred to the California adoption agency licensed to provide intercountry adoption services by international adoption agencies. Also, the foreign-born child may be a child personally known to the person(s) wishing to adopt him/her, or may be related to the person(s) wishing to adopt him/her.

The parent(s) who wants to adopt a foreign-born child must meet California's preadoption requirements. Once these have been met, the California adoption agency licensed to provide intercountry adoption services certifies that this information is correct to the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). This initiates the Federal process for the issuance of a visa for the child to enter the United States.

If the foreign-born child is to be adopted in California, the California adoption agency licensed to provide intercountry adoption services provides postplacement supervision until the adoption is finalized. If the child was adopted in his/her foreign country and the parent(s) wants to readopt the child in California, postplacement supervision is provided by the same adoption agency that provided the certification to INS that California's preadoption requirements have been met.
